WEISS JAILED FOR CAR THEFT

Deaf Mute, Suspected Of Killing Wife, Admits Stealing Automobile.

Clarence Weiss, Harrisburg deaf mute, who entered a plea of guilty to the theft of an automobile in Harrisburg early last week, was sentenced by Judge Wickersham, Monday, to serve from one to two years in the Dauphin county jail. The court recommended that Weiss be given work on the county poor farm during his imprisonment.

Weiss admitted the theft of the car after he was taken into custody on suspicion in connection with the finding of his wife's nude body in Bermudian creek, near York Springs, in the summer.

After being in custody for several weeks, Weiss attempted to commit suicide, and a lunacy commission, which examined him, informed the Dauphin county court that he was mentally sub-normal.

Stricken Bullet Ace Rallies; Will Receive Game Details by Phone

"Streak" McMillan, fleet-footed ace of the Orange and Blue football team, whose college grid career was abruptly terminated Saturday night when a serious infection developed in his right leg, started his comeback on Monday.

This morning the Bullet flash was reported in better spirits than he has been since his removal to the Annie M. Warner hospital. His temperature is almost normal. He spent a fairly comfortable night and his physician and nurses are pleased with the marked improvement in their stout-hearted patient's condition.

The Gettysburg football star is reconciled to the fact that he cannot play in the championship clash with Franklin and Marshall. Thanksgiving Day. His four-year dream of piloting a Gettysburg team against Franklin and Marshall blasted. McMillan failed to rally from the high fever and serious infection or respond to treatment administered at the hospital until Monday afternoon.

Starts Comeback. It was then, after a visit to his bedside by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, college president, Coach Bream and several of his intimates, that the young star and acting captain of the Bullet squad started to respond to the constant attention from hospital physicians and nurses.

Sensing the seriousness of his condition but steadfast in his determination to play, McMillan heard Doctor Hanson tell him that physicians declared his condition too serious to permit his donning the moleskins again this year. His spirits dropped to a low ebb and the flashy back of the Bream-coached tribe of Bullet warriors turned his head as tears welled his eyes.

For several hours his condition remained unchanged. Then his sister-nurse, Miss Mary E. McMillan, noted a change for the better in her brother-patient.

Win For "Mac" And Team. Through the late afternoon his spirits rose. Word reached him that his mates on Memorial field had reacted to the blow that struck the team when his services were lost for Three of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Toney Verenna were suffocated or burned to death today in the same manner in which their sister met death six months ago. The dead were Clara, 13, Charles, 8, and Mary, 6.

The children were trapped in a room on the second floor of their home by flames created by the attempt of their mother to kindle a fire with the aid of kerosene oil.

Sadie, a 17-year old sister who slept with them in the same room, escaped by leaping from a window. Neighbors helped four other children who occupied another room to the street.

Rosie, 9 years old, was burned to death in the house, police said, in a fire which followed a similar attempt of Mrs. Verenna to start her stove quickly on May 28.

Church Chimes To Be Played On Thursday

An hour's concert on the Dull memorial chimes, recently installed in the belfry of St. James Lutheran church, York street, will be given Thursday morning between 11 and 12 o'clock, the Rev. Earl J. Bowman, pastor, announced today.

Walter, a representative of the McShane foundry company, Baltimore, makers of the chimes, will give the concert.

The chimes, consisting of eleven notes, may be played either from the console of the pipe organ in the church or automatically, similar to the operation of a player piano.

The McShane company, which installed the chimes, also cast the bell of St. James church in 1889.

The chimes were made possible through a legacy left by William H. Dull, of Gettysburg, who died two years ago.

MOTHER'S CLUB HEARS DR. CLINE

Head Of College English Department Talks On "Books," Child Reading.

Dr. Thomas L. Cline, head of the English department at Gettysburg college, addressed the Mothers' club meeting at the home of Mrs. Mark K. Eckert, Springs avenue, Monday afternoon.

The speaker, whose subject was "Books," emphasized the necessity of encouraging children to develop the reading habit, stressing the point that a child should be allowed to follow his own inclination in selecting the books he reads. "With these books as a foundation and with the reading habit developed, the child will gradually work to a higher standard of reading until eventually he will find pleasure in the classics," Dr. Cline said.

The effect which books have on conduct and how much our happiness depends upon our emotions also were discussed by the speaker, who quoted, "Let a man feel right and he'll act right."

Determine Own Conduct. "Children should read books which appeal to their emotions," the speaker said, "since the healthiness of any person depends largely upon the emotions. And as the child gets pleasure from his reading so will he unconsciously be forging the ideals which will determine his future conduct."

An invitation from the Woman's club of York to attend an institute on Friday, November 29, was read, and the club decided that anyone who could attend the meeting should do so.

The next meeting will be held December 9 with Mrs. James P. Cairns and Mrs. John W. Brehm as the hostesses.

Mrs. Eugene Craighead and Mrs. A. B. Plank were associate hostesses for Monday's meeting.

He is president of the American Catholic Historical association and is well known because of his research work in American history under the auspices of Carnegie institute.

The first lecture, "Columbus and the Catholic Beginnings of America," was given on October 11. This was followed on November 15 by a discussion of the political, social and domestic life during the colonial period. The next lecture will be given December 13.

Doctor Stock's daughter, Miss Agnes Stock, of Washington, D. C., and his niece, Miss Angela Stock, of Broadway, Gettysburg, are members of the freshman class at St. Joseph's.

FOOD IS SCARCE. Encouraging news for Adams county sportsmen, who are awaiting the opening of the deer season next Monday, was contained in an address by Dr. Thomas E. Wynecoff, scientist for the Pennsylvania state game commission, at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Lions club at the Hotel Gettysburg, Monday evening.

"There are too many deer in many parts of Pennsylvania, and that is true of every kind of game in the state," Dr. Wynecoff said, adding: "there is more game in Pennsylvania now than the Indians or your grandfathers ever saw."

Food is scarce. A "distressing" feature of the game situation in Pennsylvania this fall is the fact that deer, squirrels, grouse and other animals have already eaten their winter's food supply. Dr. Wynecoff said. Food for game will be scarcer this winter than ever before, due to the severe drought of the past summer, and he urged sportsmen to assist the game commission in feeding animals while snows cover the ground in the next several months.

Dr. Wynecoff said surveys of the state show fawns are abundant in Pennsylvania this fall, despite the doe season last year.

The speaker told in detail how tests are being made with 20 deer at state college to determine whether laurel is poisonous to the animals or whether it is just not nutritious. Some of the country's foremost scientists and naturalists are assisting the game commission in making this study, the speaker added, the results of which will not be known before next spring.

Tells of Tularemia. Dr. Wynecoff "laid the scare" that tularemia, a disease in rabbits which affects human beings, is prevalent in Pennsylvania. "In the many specimens, sent to the game commission from all parts of the state, we have not found a single trace of tularemia," Dr. Wynecoff said. He declared he could not recall when sportsmen were so thoroughly alarmed over the disease, which the speaker characterized as serious but not necessarily fatal.

In specimens of rabbits sent to the game commission by hunters who believed them to be affected by tularemia," Dr. Wynecoff said, "we found some dog tapeworm and fat on the liver, but no tularemia."

He warned sportsmen not to allow dogs to eat rabbits affected by dog tapeworm for the chances are "1,000 to 1" that the dogs will become affected by tapeworm, although the dog tapeworm is not injurious to human beings.

A number of Gettysburg Lions are planning to attend the charter night celebration of the newly-organized Emmitsburg Lions club this evening.

A roast turkey dinner was served at the meeting.

Troopers Take Signs From Prep Students' Rooms. Signs, more than fifty of them, of almost every conceivable size, color and wording, were taken by state police from the rooms of Gettysburg academy students, Monday evening. Dr. Charles H. Huber, headmaster at the school, gave Corporal Stromman permission to search the rooms for the signs.

When the signs had been collected there were some from doctors' and dentists' offices, from lawyers' offices. "Twenty mile speed limit" signs, two state game refuge signs and others too numerous to mention.

Corporal Stromman said no arrests were made, but the students from whose rooms the signs were taken probably will be asked to return them to the owners and bring back written receipts, showing delivery, to the state officer.

COUNTYMAN MARRIED. Miss Helen Ann Crum, Biglerville, and John Lewis Bowling, Gettysburg, were married Saturday morning in the parsonage of Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, Westminster. The ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward Hayes.

Shrubbery Planting Along Highways Improves Views

Pennsylvania, long noted for its beautiful scenery, is making its highways even more pleasing to the motorist's eyes.

Planting of grass seed and sod on barren slopes and sides of cuts as well as the planting of shade trees, vines, shrubs, evergreens and perennials has added to the aesthetic appreciation of a drive along Pennsylvania's highways. This planting has been done largely by the highway department throughout the state but in some cases civic and public organizations have bought or supplied the plants.

However, the state highway department is not looking to the aesthetic advantages of this work nor is it pointing with pride to the beautification of the roadway. It is conducting this work solely from an economical standpoint. The planting prevents disastrous erosion and enables the department to reduce its maintenance costs. The trees serve as wind and snow breaks thus reducing the amount of work in clearing roads of snow and reducing this maintenance cost. In addition the department has been clearing sites to give the motorist a clearer vision of the highway. In the mountainous and hilly regions the tops of trees have been cut and in the lowlands the underbrush has been removed and lower branches of trees cut. But, here, too, the department has enhanced the beauty of its highways by enabling the motorist to have a clearer view of the scenic splendors of the surrounding country.

$35,000 Spent
More than $35,000 was expended last spring in the planting work of the highway department. This sum provided 1812 shade trees, 10,878 evergreens, 5407 snow breaks, 56,807 shrubs, 109,687 vines, 576 perennials, 33,110 ground cover plants, 1618 willow trees, making a total of 119,895 plants. This cost the state $30,005 and did not include the sowing of 560 pounds of grass seed on 114,000 square feet of slopes and shoulders where other planting was impossible. Sixty-nine thousand, six hundred and seventy-seven square feet of sod were placed at a cost of $5,030. At 56 scenic spots underbrush was cleared and trees pruned to clear the view.

In addition to this work the various civic organizations furnished a total of 5,442 plants divided as follows: 458 shade tree, 570 ornamental trees, 2705 snowbreaks, 49 vines, 236 perennials such as phlox and iris and 787 shrubs, including the various berry-bearing plants.

Initial Cost High
The department forester, John W. Keller, who is in charge of this work, pointed out that the first cost is practically the only cost in the planting as the plants continue to grow and thrive with little if any care. Care is taken in mapping out the planting program so that no trees will be placed where they might eventually interfere with overhead wires. Much work also is being done with the blind inter-sections. Where formally roads crossed at right angles, banks are being cut away and in many instances Y-shaped intersections formed to give the motorist a clearer view of the road and to facilitate movement of traffic.

Another value of this work, Keller said, is that motorists show a disinclination to discard rubbish where the sides of the road are planted, most of the paper, boxes, cartons, etc., being thrown at bare and unplanted or unkept spots.

In addition to this the department removed 25,027 illegal signs from points along the highways, these signs either being those which were placed without consent from the property owner or those for which the lease had expired.

Work started last month which will be concluded this month will result in the planting of 4268 shade trees and 4719 evergreens along the various highways in the eight districts of the state. These trees are not placed on roads where the right of way is 50 feet wide or less, the trees being planted on highways where the right of way is from 60 to 80 feet wide. In December the department will start its winter work for protection and care of its planting where necessary and next April it will begin its spring planting work.

C. C. WORKING ON BOULEVARD

Local Chamber Cooperating With Silver Spring Body On Proposed Road.

Complete unification exists between the Silver Springs, Maryland, Chamber of Commerce and the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce as a result of resolutions passed at recent meetings of the directors of both organizations. Each Chamber appointed a committee of seven to collaborate as a promotion, advisory and publicity committee in the creation of the proposed Washington-Gettysburg Lincoln Memorial Boulevard.

President Roy P. Funkhouser, of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, has not yet announced the personnel of the Gettysburg committee.

The joint committees will collaborate in all the larger problems affecting the promotion and publicity connected with the proposed boulevard. They will also have associated with them the members and engineers of the Maryland National Park and Planning Commission.

The first meeting will be held after the two committees are organized and the Maryland engineers complete their tentative route plan.

Plan Community Chest
The Chamber of Commerce directors also endorsed a plan to analyze the possibilities of the establishment of a Community Chest here. A committee will be appointed later.

Several other organizations in town favor such a project and the chamber committee will co-operate with all the agencies interested in the plan.

Edmund W. Thomas, chairman of the industrial committee, made an extensive report of the activities of his committee.

Several industries for industrial locations have come to the attention of the committee but upon investigation reports in most cases were not favorable.

The industrial committee has completed a thorough survey of sites available in the borough and immediate environs.

PAIR WEDS IN AIR AND THEN LEAPS IN CHUTE

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Nov. 26 (AP)—Two thousand feet over Roosevelt Field, in an eighteen-passenger, twin-motored bombing plane, Miss Marguerite Klinger, of New York, and Donald Babcock, chief of a crew of flying field mechanics, were married Monday.

As soon as the ceremony was completed the bride and bridegroom made parachute jumps, the best man following them. Both Babcock and his bride previously had made several parachute leaps, and Eugene Kraus, the best man, is a professional jumper. The airplane was piloted by Harold McMahon, who played a thundering wedding march on two 525-horsepower motors. Judge Eugene L. Flangan, of Bayville, L. I., performed the ceremony and Miss Elaine Lewie, of Far Rockaway, was the maid of honor.

The bride's wedding costume consisted of a khaki-colored canvas flying suit, extra heavy fur-lined boots and a leather helmet. For a veil she wore a twenty-four foot silk parachute.

PATROLMAN PUTS OUT RUG FIRE
York—Patrolman C. C. Browne extinguished a fire Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, which might have proved disastrous. A rug was burning in the home of John Fox, 140 South Newberry street. The rug was taken outside of the house, where it was extinguished without the use of a fire apparatus.

Wildes, 23, who has been making an extensive search of night clubs and other places since she disappeared mysteriously last Tuesday.

Mrs. Wildes, who before her marriage a year ago was Ida D. CIGAR FACTORY DESTROYED BY FIRE
York—A fire, the origin of which is under investigation, did $10,000 worth of damage Sunday morning at 4:49 o'clock in the cigar factory of W. H. Falkner and Sons, Cottage place and McKenzie street.

The fire was discovered in the label room, and when the firemen had arrived at the scene, it had eaten through to the second floor and the manufactured cigar products and several breaking machines had been destroyed. It is thought the fire had been burning several hours before discovery. The large wooden posts supporting the second floor were burned to a crisp, denoting that the fire could have been burning several hours previous. The posts were said to be 8 by 10 inches thick. The joists on the second floor were burned clean, and none were broken when the floor fell.

When his son did not return within a few minutes, Victor Beemer went into the comfort station and could not find Claude. The elder Beemer learned that the door connecting the two sections of the station was open and believes his son used that means of escape.

RUSSIANS ROUT CHINESE ARMY

General Arrives 240 Miles From Border Without His Own Forces

Tokyo, Nov. 26 (AP)—As a result of the invasion of Manchuria by Russian armed forces, driving Chinese soldiers and civilians before them, Buchatu, a town 240 miles east of Manchuli, was the westward limit of travel on the Chinese Eastern Railway, it was stated in Rengo News Agency dispatches from Manchuria.

The Japanese consular police from Tsitsihar, West-Central Manchuria, attempting to reach Khailar to assist Japanese residents, was stopped at Buchatu. The Chinese Eastern railway station at Changchun has ceased selling tickets or accepting freight for points beyond Buchatu.

Harbin is without trustworthy news of the region beyond the Khingan Mountains in Northwest Manchuria, where Soviet armed operations are unresisted and leaderless Chinese soldiers are living off the country.

General Has No Army
Indicating the demoralization of the Chinese forces, the commander of the Chinese northwestern frontier army arrived at Buchatu without his army.

Despite the Soviet invasion, Harbin, one of the most important trading centers of Manchuria, shows little public alarm. Nevertheless, Chinese bankers are shipping treasure southward and large consignments of silver dollars and documents belonging to the Bank of China have arrived at Changchun.

Well-informed observers in Harbin expressed the opinion that the Russian invaders would halt at the Khingan Mountains and that diplomatic negotiations would be reopened to effect a settlement of the dispute over the control and operation of the Chinese Eastern railway.

The county grand jury was to inspect the 70 year old jail tomorrow to determine whether the county was in need of a new one.

Harrisburg, Nov. 26 (AP)—Dr. Thomas "English Tommy" Gilchrist, Philadelphia gambler, was denied a Thanksgiving pardon by the state board of pardons, it was announced today.

Gilchrist, serving a sentence for possessing opium, asked a pardon on the grounds that the drugs found in his car were not his property.

The board held under advisement the application of John Brennan, serving two years in the Montgomery county jail for carrying a pint of whiskey.

The case was held up pending receipt of information from Judge Williams, the trial judge.

Woman is Held in First Crime In New Vatican City State

Vatican City, Nov. 26 (AP)—A Swedish woman named Ramstad Marguerite Gudum, was under arrest for the first crime in the history of the newly formed Vatican City State.

The woman, who is 30 years old and is believed to be mentally deranged, attempted to kill Monsignor Smit, titular Archbishop of Paralo and former Apostolic Vicar of Norway, in St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday.

She drew a pistol, aimed at Monsignor Smit and pulled the trigger three times. The weapon jammed, and then Prince George of Bavaria, a brilliant cavalry officer, who took ecclesiastical orders eight years ago,

The Secret Of Mohawk Pond

BY NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN

SYNOPSIS: Terrifying experiences introduce Peggy Prescott to life at Yew Lodge where she is determined to live for a month to gain the fortune left by her uncle, Herbert Prescott. His will stipulates she must live at his Connecticut estate for a month with only a servant, never leaving it for more than an hour or forfeit the legacy. Suspecting Sundown, an Indian, of being the silent figure who greeted her at the lodge and then vanished, and of conspiring her cause, Peggy calls at the Indian's camp but he is absent. Her suspicions are partly allayed when she learns of Sundown's reputed "night-blindness."

Chapter 7

AN UNWELCOME VISITOR

HE coupe came to an abrupt stop as Peggy pressed down on the brake and Julia, sitting behind her, pitched forward.

She had turned the car completely around before her maid had recovered sufficiently from her surprise to question her.

"For why ain't yo' gwine to Litchfield, Miss Peggy?" she demanded.

"Because I find I can't get there and back within an hour."

Peggy compared her watch and the speedometer.

"At least not in a new car. I'll phone the doctor and ask him to come to Yew Lodge instead."

"Tain't necessary on my 'count," protested Julia.

The wide wooden door that gave entrance to the tower stood open, and Stanton entered the home of Aquila Chase without ceremony. His catlike tread on the stairs to the floor above had not disturbed Aquila, busily writing, and Stanton noiselessly swung himself up to the floor through the trap door and sat with his feet dangling down through the opening watching Chase write steadily on, unconscious of his visitor's presence.

It was striking seven when Stanton broke the silence.

"Writing your life history?" he asked.

Chase's violent start overturned a small ink bottle.

Chase dropped a blotter over the stained papers, before him and rose.

"No harm done," he declared.

"Where did you spring from, Ed?"

"Sharon," briefly. "I came up to look over the old place; Clark wants to go to the city, so I am hunting another caretaker. Can you put me up, Aquila, for a week, say?"

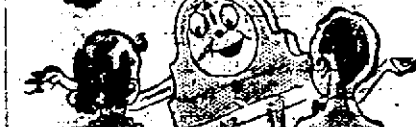

Chase looked at him dubiously.

"Oh, certainly," but his tone lacked warmth.

"I'll bring up my duds," Stanton called as he scurried down the steps.

Chase had dinner ready when his

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE CHILLY VISITOR

By Mary Graham Bonner

The visitor came walking through the field, and as he came the grass began to blow and the air grew very much colder.

As he saw the Little Black Clock he waved and the Little Black Clock waved back. Then John and Peggy waved.

As the visitor came near, carrying a suitcase in each hand, he said, "Hello."

Just saying that one word seemed to send a gust of chilly air right through them.

The Little Black Clock asked him to sit down. He was tall and thin. His clothes looked rather blown and undry as if they were not completely dry and had never been pressed.

From his hat were feathers that looked like they might have been made of frost, and at the edges of his cuffs were trimmings that reminded Peggy and Jim of small, thin icicles.

"Hello," he said again. John and Peggy said "Hello," too.

"It was nice of you to ask me to stop here for a bit, and take a rest before continuing my journey," he told the Little Black Clock. "It's a nice morning, isn't it?" he asked.

The children knew from this that the Little Black Clock had turned the time back to the morning.

Their conversation was desultory and then Stanton asked:

"Have you met Prescott's niece?"

"Yes," Chase eyed his companion steadily for a few minutes. "She is very charming and, as an afterthought, 'very rich.'"

Stanton laid down the end of his cigar.

"Is she?" he questioned softly.

"She has a month and a day to qualify under the terms of her uncle's will and the time is not up yet. If she is absent from Yew Lodge for over one hour in any 24, the money goes to Jamieson Sinclair."

Chase's mild blue eyes opened wide.

"Very curious," he commented.

"Philander is much interested in Miss Prescott and very much worried by her isolated position at Yew Lodge. He has written to suggest that she engage a trained nurse as companion."

"But she has a maid."

"An ignorant colored girl."

Chase's disapproval was obvious.

"My brother is right; Miss Prescott should not remain longer without proper companionship. Her nearest neighbor is Obadiah Evans."

Stanton ran his fingers through his hair until it stood upright.

"And Sundown," he pointed out, smiling significantly.

Chase stirred uneasily in his chair.

"The half-breed was devoted to her uncle."

"But suppose Sundown regards Miss Prescott as an interloper? He looks on the land around Mohawk Pond as his; I've heard him boast as much to Prescott when drunk."

Pushing back his chair, Chase rose, a troubled look in his eyes.

"You suggest pleasant possibilities," he said. "Do you know why Prescott did not wish his niece to be absent from Yew Lodge over an hour at a time?"

"I—Stanton swallowed hard—"I haven't an idea." He gathered up the soiled pans and dishes. "I'll wash these at the brook," and he bolted from the tower.

For a long minute the botanist stood staring at the open door, his thoughts in a turmoil—that Edgar Stanton had lied in answering his last question he had not the faintest doubt.

The Secret Of Mohawk Pond

BY NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN

SYNOPSIS: Terrifying experience introduces Peggy Prescott to life at Yew Lodge where she is determined to live for a month to gain the fortune left by her uncle, Herbert Prescott. His will stipulates she must live at his Connecticut estate for a month with only a servant, never leaving it for more than an hour or forfeit the legacy. Suspecting Sundown, an Indian, of being the silent figure who arrested her at the lodge and then vanished, and of conspiring to her ruin, Peggy calls at the Indian's camp but he is absent. Her suspicions are partly allayed when she learns of Sundown's reputed "night-blindness."

Chapter 7

AN UNWELCOME VISITOR

HE coupe came to an abrupt stop as Peggy pressed down on the brake and Julia, sitting behind her, pitched forward.

She had turned the car completely around before her maid had recovered sufficiently from her surprise to question her.

"Fo' why ain' yo' gwine to Litchfield, Miss Peggy?" she demanded.

"Because I find I can't get there and back within an hour."

Peggy compared her watch and the speedometer.

"At least not in a new car. I'll phone the doctor and ask him to come to Yew Lodge instead."

"Tain' necessary on my 'count," protested Julia.

Startled by a voice, Chase turned to stare at his visitor; it was Stanton.

"Miss Peggy, did yo' notice that gemman on horseback who we passed awhile ago?"

"Yes; wh, Julia?"

"I dunno, 'cept he come after us ways, an' den tu'nd off into de woods. 'Seems like he wanted to speak to yo', but yo' all went by so fas—"

"I'm sorry."

On their approach to Mohawk Lane Peggy slowed down and made the turn into it in second gear, her eyes the while scanning the Evans' homestead.

The neigh of a horse came from the left and she saw a sorrel mare, saddled and bridled, standing by the spring house; its rider was not visible and she kept on her way.

Her progress up the lane, however, was closely watched by the owner of the horse who, having quenched his thirst, was comfortably seated on a bench partially concealed from the road by a clump of lilac bushes.

As Peggy drove out of sight, he got up and walked hurriedly through the woods skirting the lake. He was too late to intercept her at the first gate, Julia having opened it and gotten back into the car with unusual speed.

From down the lane came a hall and in another second Obadiah Evans was at the man's side.

"They told me up at the store you were back, Lieutenant Stanton."

"As cordial as ever," grinned Edgar Stanton, making no attempt to shake hands. Obadiah eyed him carefully.

"Where are you staying?"

"With you—"

But Obadiah shook his head. "Haven't any vacant rooms," he announced. "Must you be going?"

Stanton took this dismissal with a tormenting smile.

He sprang into the saddle and sat looking down at Obadiah, the afternoon sun making his reddish hair appear more red.

"How many know of the two cop-headers you put out to kill the 'frogs in Mohawk Pond?" he asked in a quiet tone and his eyes danced as the color drained from Obadiah's cheeks. "Old man Prescott died from snake bite."

Horse and rider disappeared down the road to East Cornwall in a cloud of dust. At Stone Tower gate as dismounted, opened and closed it, and not troubling to mount again, let the horse follow him to the round stone tower some distance away.

The wide wooden door that gave entrance to the tower stood open, and Stanton entered the home of Aquila Chase without ceremony. His catlike tread on the stairs to the floor above had not disturbed Aquila, busily writing, and Stanton noiselessly swung himself up to the floor through the trap door and sat with 'is feet dangling down through the opening watching Chase write steadily on, unconscious of his visitor's presence.

It was striking seven when Stanton broke the silence.

"Writing your life history?" he asked.

Chase's violent start overturned a small ink bottle.

Chase dropped a blotter over the stained papers, before him and rose.

"No harm done," he declared. "Where did you spring from, Ed?"

"Sharon," briefly. "I came up to look over the old place; Clark wants to go to the city, so I am hunting another caretaker. Can you put me up, Aquila, for a week, say?"

Chase looked at him dubiously. "Oh, certainly," but his tone lacked warmth.

"I'll bring up my duds," Stanton called as he scurried down the steps.

Chase had dinner ready when his guest returned and they satisfied their hunger.

Their conversation was desultory and then Stanton asked:

"Have you met Prescott's niece?"

"Yes," Chase eyed his companion steadily for a few minutes. "She is very charming and, as an afterthought, 'very rich.'"

Stanton laid down the stub of his cigar.

"Is she?" he questioned softly. "She has a month and a day to qualify under the terms of her uncle's will and the time is not up yet. If she is absent from Yew Lodge for over one hour in any 24, the money goes to Jamieson Sinclair."

Chase's mild blue eyes opened wide.

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE CHILLY VISITOR

By Mary Graham Bonner

The visitor came walking through the field, and as he came the grass began to blow and the air grew very much colder.

As he saw the Little Black Clock he waved and the Little Black Clock waved back. Then John and Peggy waved.

As the visitor came near, carrying a suitcase in each hand, he said, "Hello."

Just saying that one word seemed to send a gust of chilly air right through them.

The Little Black Clock asked him to sit down. He was tall and thin. His clothes looked rather blown and untidy as if they were not completely dry and had never been pressed.

From his hat were feathers that looked like they might have been made of frost, and at the edges of his cuffs were trimmings that reminded Peggy and Jim of small, thin icicles.

"Hello," he said again. John and Peggy said "Hello," too.

"It was nice of you to ask me to stop here for a bit, and take a rest before continuing my journey," he told the Little Black Clock. "It's a nice morning, isn't it?" he asked.

The children knew from this that the Little Black Clock had turned the time back to the morning.

"I have to come to get everything ready for my family," the visitor went on. "You know how people choose some one to go ahead and open up a house that has been closed for a season, or some one has to open up a school after the holidays—well, I'm somewhat like that. Only I'm very different."

"Goodness!" said the Little Black Clock. "You will certainly puzzle John and Peggy. Won't you explain yourself more clearly?"

"Surely," came the answer. And he did.

TOKYO FOSTERS BIRTH CONTROL AMONG THE POOR

Tokyo (AP)—The capital of Japan is making official preparations to furnish birth control information to its poor in an effort to relieve the suffering that comes from large families in poverty stricken homes.

This sociological experiment, especially startling in the Orient where ancestor worship has placed a premium on large families, is hailed by proponents of birth control as opening the way for application of this remedy on a national scale to Japan's overpopulation problem.

Yukichi Shirakami, deputy mayor of Tokyo, said it was the purpose to give information only to couples that already have four children and can show that they are too poor to care for more. Information will be denied to young, newly married couples and to persons of wealth.

Sidelights of New York

By Richard Massock

New York—Gloria Swanson, in town for a fortnight, disclosed that talking pictures have, if nothing else, developed a lot of versatility.

Miss Swanson sang for this reporter the them song written for her dialog debut. And not only did she prove herself to be a vocal pantomime, but she also disclosed that Elsie Janis wrote the words and Edmund Goulding, her director, composed the music.

The title of the piece is "Love, Your Spell Is Everywhere," which must make her first talkie, "The Trespasser," a love-spell picture.

Upon her return, Miss Swanson said, she will become a Californian. Both her Manhattan apartment and her country place at Croton have been disposed of and hereafter she will stay at Hollywood, where the climate is a better restorative after a day in the sound-studio than New York's motor-gassed air.

Racket

Miss Swanson's vocal qualities already were known to her friends and apparently her movie tone-test was satisfactory. Which affords slight excuse for telling about a certain Broadway booking agent.

After the advent of sound pictures, this enterprising individual began offering voice tests to chor-say-so at two talent-engaging offices, he would agree to make an appointment upon collecting a fee of $100 to $200. But when the girls went to the offices they were told that no appointment had been made.

If they complained to the booking office, they were told that the racketeer was only working there on commission and the agency had nothing to do with his enterprise. Some got hard-boiled about it. Then the booker would make the appointment. He did well until eventually the racket became too risky.

But don't be entirely disillusioned about the city.

Much to her embarrassment, a young woman boarded a Fifth avenue bus the other day without her purse. The driver, insisting he had orders never to put coinless souls like herself off the bus, gallantly gave her a dime. Incidents like that often happen with women, he said, and once in a while with men.

Investigation revealed that the bus conductors lend the dimes out of their own pockets, out of loyalty, honesty or something, instead of merely letting the passenger ride free. Sometimes the dime is returned, sometimes not. Anyway, they get enough letters of commendation from appreciative passengers to make it worthwhile.

Gentility

Metropolitan stores doing a large credit business now refer to installment buying at "budget plan," "deferred payment plan," or "payment from income." The more polite phrases are almost universally used.

Night Riders Burn Young Man Alive In West
Mountainview, Ark., Nov. 26 (AP).—Sheriff Sam Johnson of Stone county, said that a reign of terror had been created in the St. James community in order to seal the lips of citizens regarding a series of crimes by a band of nightriders that culminated in the torturing and burning alive of a young farm laborer.

"Everyone who knew anything about the slaying of Tommie Franklin and an attack on his sweetheart was terrorized by a band of men who threatened anyone who gave information to us," he said.

Bill Younger, father of five children, and Huber Hester are in jail at Newport, two other men are in jail at Batesville and a fifth man is held here.

The girl's account of the torture, mutilation and burning alive of her sweetheart was substantiated by a written statement of a deaf boy who witnessed the crime.

The father of the girl was severely whipped by night riders, the night before the slaying, Sheriff Johnson said.

The drawer was found by a passing motorist who notified Carlisle police. The register was later found in a nearby field by the Carlisle police. The restaurant which is owned by George Elden has been entered by thieves on previous occasions.

All of the eight active depositories and a former depository have accepted the checks returned to them by the state treasury. The checks in turn were handed over to the banks whose names appeared as endorsers and the collection started.

C. C. WORKING ON BOULEVARD
Local Chamber Cooperating With Silver Spring Body On Proposed Road.

Complete unification exists between the Silver Springs, Maryland, Chamber of Commerce and the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce as a result of resolutions passed at recent meetings of the directors of both organizations.

Each Chamber appointed a committee of seven to collaborate as a promotion, advisory and publicity committee in the creation of the proposed Washington-Gettysburg-Lincoln Memorial Boulevard.

President Roy P. Funkhouser, of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, has not yet announced the personnel of the Gettysburg committee.

The joint committees will collaborate in all the larger problems affecting the promotion and publicity connected with the proposed boulevard. They will also have associated with them the members and engineers of the Maryland National Park and Planning Commission.

The first meeting will be held after the two committees are organized and the Maryland engineers complete their tentative route plan.

PATROLMAN PUTS OUT RUG FIRE
York—Patrolman C. C. Browne extinguished a fire Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, which might have proved disastrous. A rug was burning in the home of John Fox, 140 South Newberry street. It was over a pipe that leads from the furnace to the chimney. The heat of the pipe set the rug smoldering and it burst into a blaze. The rug was taken outside of the house, where it was extinguished without the use of a fire apparatus.

Wildes, 23, who has been making an extensive search of night clubs and other places since she disappeared mysteriously last Tuesday.

Mrs. Wildes, who before her marriage a year ago was Ida D. Stern, of York, Pa., came with her husband from Lancaster to take up their new residence and at the same time be near the missing woman's sister. CIGAR FACTORY DESTROYED BY FIRE
York—A fire, the origin of which is under investigation, did $10,000 worth of damage Sunday morning at 4:49 o'clock in the cigar factory of W. H. Falkier and Sons, Cottage place and McKendzie street.

The fire was discovered in the label room, and when the firemen had arrived at the scene, it had eaten through to the second floor and the manufactured cigar products and several breaking machines had been destroyed. It is thought the fire had been burning several hours before discovery. The large wooden posts supporting the second floor were burned to a crisp, denoting that the fire could have been burning several hours previous. The posts were said to be 8 by 10 inches thick. The joists on the second floor were burned clean, and none were broken when the floor fell.

VET ESCAPES FROM HOSPITAL
Harrisburg—While his father, Victor A. Beemer, Scranton, was taking him for a walk Sunday afternoon, Claude Beemer, 35, a patient at the Harrisburg State hospital, escaped.

Beemer said he had received the permission of the State hospital authorities to take his son for a walk. Claude asked his father's permission to go into the men's comfort station in Market Square. The elder Beemer waited outside the comfort station.

When his son did not return within a few minutes, Victor Beemer went into the comfort station and could not find Claude. The elder Beemer learned that the door connecting the two sections of the station was open and believes his son used that means of escape.

TEN YEARS AGO

Medicine Store Opens.—With the opening of Stephen's Medicine Store at 34 Baltimore street, another improvement is added to Gettysburg. The store is not a branch of any Carlisle store, but is controlled by C. Ross Shuman, formerly of Harrisburg, and now a resident of Gettysburg. W. C. Stephens, of Carlisle, is here temporarily until the business gets under way.

Donald Weiser, of Gettysburg, a senior at high school, has been engaged to assist Mr. Shuman.

Large Crowd at Dance.—Presenting vivid testimony that the popular art of dancing in company with as worthy a cause as the hospital drive forms a combination that cannot be equalled in Adams county, over three hundred persons struggled around Gladfelter Hall Friday night while dancing to the strains of the college orchestra.

The dance given by the Acorn club for the benefit of the Annie M. Warner hospital was a great success in every detail and the committee estimates that about $100 will be cleared for the endowment fund.

Members of the Acorn club are Misses Lottie Raffensperger, Ruth Klepper, Gertrude Scheaffer, Mazie Krout, Margaret Williams, Katharine Bender, Nellie Rummel, Virginia Myers, Della Shultz, Ethel Chulp, Blanche Hoffman, Ruth Meales, Amelia Scharf, Gladys Raymond, Maud Whiteleather, Mrs. Becker and Mrs. Helfrich, of Baltimore.

Party.—A very enjoyable party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herman Bream, Chambersburg street, on Tuesday evening for their daughter, Treva, and her friends. Those present were Mrs. J. Herman Bream, Misses Ruth Heagey, Treva Bream, Vera Beatty, Helen Heagey, Margaret Hankey, May Shetter, Dorothy Wright, Sara Galbraith, Irene Williams, Clara McClellan, Helen Bream and Hazel Bream, Messrs. Glenn Bream, Alfred Gilbert, Alvin Heiges, Sylvester McKenrick, Elmer Slaybaugh, John Mickley, William Mickley.

Wants to Be Citizen.—Angelos George Camberis, of the Plaza restaurant on Baltimore street, has filed a declaration of intention papers with Prothonotary G. Harry Roth in order to become a naturalized citizen of the United States. These papers must remain on file two years.

Camberis came to this country in 1910 from Athens, Greece.

Enter Real Estate Work.—Clyde Berger, of Carlisle street, who married Miss Mary Kohler, will enter the real estate business in Gettysburg in the near future.

High in Price and Hard to Get. With Thanksgiving day only a week off the fact that turkeys are high and scarce is becoming impressive. Anywhere from forty to seventy-five cents a pound is likely to be the price levied upon those who are determined to retain the custom of eating turkey. Geese will be worth thirty cents and ducks from twenty-seven to thirty.

Local Post Will Elect Leader.—As a result of the rule passed at the American Legion national convention stating that "no candidate for or incumbent of a salaried elective public office shall hold any office in the American Legion or in any branch of the post thereof," the Albert Lentz post of Gettysburg will meet on the night of December 15 to select a successor to their present chairman, John W. Hartman, of Gettysburg, who was elected sheriff of Adams county at the general election.

Lauver-Hewitt.—John H. Lauver, of Gettysburg, who is employed at the Strasbaugh Lumber company, and Zora M. Hewitt, also of Gettysburg, were married by Rev. W. R. Glen in the United Brethren parsonage, West High street on Saturday evening.

Personal.—Mrs. Norman Hoke, of Chicago, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hoke on High street.

Lawrence Singmaster, of Germantown, is visiting his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Singmaster, of Seminary Ridge, and Dr. and Mrs. Diehl, Baltimore street.

Melvin Hill, of Pittsburgh, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hill, on Carlisle street.

Miss Evelyn Cramer, of Hanover, is spending several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Price Oyler, York street.

Miss Joanna King, East Middle street, left today for York and Villa Nova, where she will spend several days with relatives and friends.

THE POOR RICH MAN

In a sunny place where men go to play
I met a millionaire one day.
His eye was sad and his voice was low
As he watched the workers come and go,
And I had to smile as I heard him sob,
"I wish to the Lord that I had a job!"

"I have everything that a mortal needs,
A man to pull out my garden weeds,
A car to drive and food to eat—
With all I want is my life complete,
But I'm forced to idle the long days through,
And I wish to the Lord I'd a job to do!"

"I used to dream of the joy I'd claim
When the time for quitting all labor came,
With the fortune made and the work all done,
But a tedious life is the life of fun,
And I'd happier be, let me say to you,
Could I wake once more with a job to do."

"There's nothing that money buys or brings
That equals the thrill of doing things.
To spend is nice, but I've lived to learn
I was happier far when I worked to earn.
With pride no longer my pulses throb,
I'm an idle man and I want a job!"

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

Dear Uncle Lucky sat within
His cosy little house,
Waiting for his breakfast
And his small housekeeper mouse.

I suppose, dear little readers, you have been wondering what has become of Little Jack Rabbit. Perhaps you have been wishing that the next story would be all about him. Well then, you shall have your wish, but first just listen to what is going to happen in this one.

"Little Miss Mousie," suddenly exclaimed nice Uncle Lucky Lefthind-foot. "I think I'll go down to Rabbitville. The rheumatism in my left hind toe is better this morning."

Indeed, I feel quite frisky," and with a nimble hop-tee-ty, the dear old gentleman rabbit crossed the shiny floor of the sitting room and out into the hall. Taking his precious old wedding stovetop hat from the peg in the wall, he fastened in more securely his diamond horseshoe pin that sparkled from his purple cravat, and then hopped out to the garage.

"Hey, there, Old Red Rooster," he shouted, "have you washed the Luckymobile?"

"Yes, indeedy," answered the old fowl, strutting from the barn in his rubber boots that reached clear up to his feathered trousers;

"It's as clean as a whistle,
Shines like a new pin.
All you have to do
Is just to hop in."

"Well, that's easy," chuckled the old gentleman bunny, and in he hopped, clipperty clop, and giving the horn a honk or two, away and away like a comet he flew.

Goodness gracious me! There goes "Remmy," my typewriter friend, into poetry, not my neglecting to put the pretty rhymes into verse form, but making a mistake as well. Yes, indeedy, automobiles don't fly, not even in Rabbitland! Well, we'll let it go at that.

By and by, after a while, and nearly a mile, the old gentleman bunny stopped at the Three-in-One Cent Store, where he inquired of the lady salesman, a nice little duck, if she kept blue ribbons.

"What are you going to do with them?" she asked, with a twinkle in her eye. "These narrow ones are for babies, these big ones for ladies."

"Can you tie up bobbed hair with them?" asked the dear, perplexed old gentleman rabbit.

"Bobbed hair and ribbons are strangers these days," answered the lady duck salesman, with a quackery laugh.

"Dear, dear," sighed poor Uncle Lucky. "I just read in Mother Goose of a little girl whose Johnny had gone to the fair to buy her a bunch of blue ribbons to tie up her bonny brown hair."

"Ha, ha!" chuckled the lady duck. "Girls wore curls in those days. Ha, ha!"

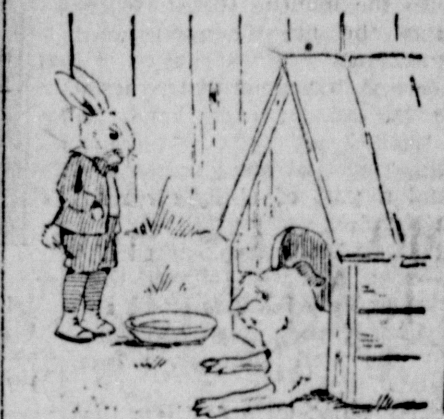

"Dear, dear, dearest me!" sighed Uncle Lucky. "Maybe I had better buy a lollypop for Miss Mousie," and he took out a carrot cent and laid it on the counter. And as he hopped out and climbed into the Luckymobile he wished that Miss Mousie were long curls so that he might have bought a bunch of blue ribbons to tie up her bonny brown hair. In the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

"Cock-a-doodle-do,
The old mare's lost her shoe.
Henny Jenny's done her best
To fill with eggs her comfy nest."

I've waked the sun this early morn
By loudly blowing my little tin horn."

sang Cocky Doodles, the little red rooster, as Little Jack Rabbit peeked through a crack in the fence at the Big Farmyard. Just a few hops away, in his comfortable wooden bungalow, slept Old Sic-em, the farmer's watch dog. Lazily opening his eyes, he turned them toward the bunny boy rabbit.

"Well, well, well," softly barked the old canine, stretching himself as he crawled out into the sunshine.

"How's my bunny friend today?" answered the truthful little rabbit.

"Just as happy as yesterday, but I'm not sure about tomorrow."

"Do what Mother says and every day in the week you'll be happy," replied the old dog, with a wag of his tail.

"I do try, but sometimes I forget," admitted the little rabbit.

"Tie a pink string around a finger. That will help you to remember," chuckled the old dog. "The chain on my collar never lets me forget that I can't go visiting."

"Don't you get fidgety?" asked the kind hearted little bunny, holding out a yellow lollypop.

"Oh, yes, often," answered the old dog. "Sometimes the Kind Farmer takes me to the village for a run. When I get back I'm tired and don't mind being tied up. Oh, I guess I'm used to it."

"Sic'em, want to go to the village?" all of a sudden inquired a voice, and there in the kitchen doorway stood the Kind Farmer himself. With a nimble hop-tee-ty the little rabbit hid behind the haystack hitched up to the buggy. Picking up the reins, the Kind Farmer clicked his tongue against his teeth, and off he drove down the road.

"We'll be home in time for tea,
Better not wait till then for me."

barked Old Sic'em as the little rabbit hopped out from his hiding place, which sulked the bunny boy, for he had other things to do. Nor could he stay long in one spot. No, indeedy, Danny Fox might happen by or Old Man Weasel stroll along, so away hopped the little rabbit toward the wildwood, where the trees shivered in the wind and the dry leaves rustled on the ground.

"Where are you going?" all of a sudden asked Grandmother Crow. Her sharp eyes had spied him before he had even caught a glimpse of her. Dear me, I wonder why disagreeable folks are so apt to see us first. Perhaps it's because we are not thinking of them.

"Where are you going?" again inquired this meddlesome old person in black feather.

"No where in particular," answered the truthful little rabbit, wishing to goodness gracious he did have an errand to hasten him along.

"What's your ma doing?" inquired the old black lady bird.

"Making pies for Thanksgiving," replied the little rabbit. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

ON SAYING MEAN THINGS

THE most expert person in the saying of mean things is the ignorant person.
The intelligent person often thinks them—but he rarely says them. That's one of the things that makes him intelligent. Alertness and cleverness of mind are far from real intelligence. Education is born in the heart.

Who does not love and honor the man who doesn't know how to say a mean or sarcastic thing?

I like to read book reviews. I select a great many books for my own personal reading through this method. But when I read an unusually unkind review of a book I am stimulated in interest, for somehow I do not believe that most people go out of their way to hurt others. And so I say that the bitterly criticized book may have a great deal of merit!

I remember how the great George Gray Barnard "Lincoln" brofize was so severely criticized. But to me it is the greatest piece of character modeling in heroic cast I have ever seen. When you approach the statue you almost unconsciously remove your hat.

Some books are not very good or inspiring, but every book represents much of the hopes, aspirations, sacrifices, disappointments, and real life of the author. And it is better to speak of the good things about the book than the faulty things. Many of our greatest masterpieces were produced by writers who first turned out every mediocre book. I would like to have been the critic or reviewer who said a good thing about the first attempts of such writers as: Kipling, Dickens, Hudson, Galsworthy, or to have pointed to the early manifestations of genius behind the pen of George Bernard Shaw.

I know those who have boasted of the fact that they have the ability to say mean things. I have never met a human being who liked to have mean things said to him.

Kindliness is always like the sunshine piercing through grey clouds. How welcome it is—how people hunger for it!

IF MEMORY LIVES

EACH of us carries about within him, in his heart, a sacred shrine. In the springtime the green grass and early buds of the field are evident there. And when summer is well on its way, the fragrant winds from the four corners of the earth bring coolness and peace to that shrine. And when the fall of the golden leaves of autumn spread the earth with their substance of remembered beauty, that shrine is newly glorified.

Even winter's cold and its blasts of snow only add warmth and protection and cleanliness to this shrine within one's heart.

Dedicated to all the sweet and happy memories of life is this shrine! And so it is that if Memory lives, we can never be wholly unhappy.

Though a quarter of a century has stilled the voice and heart of my Mother, and season upon season has come and gone above the grave where we gently placed her precious form, from this Memory shrine she freshly kissed me Goodbye today and sent me away to school again!

About the golden base and across the marble way that paves the sacred room within which this shrine is housed, tiny feet patter their treads, ecstasy is all aglow, rosebuds smile, and the petals of apple blossoms tumble from their scented nests.

If Memory lives, then life is always growing richer, friends dearer, and the hard tasks lessen in difficulty.

But so often this shrine becomes neglected. The owner forgets. Perhaps he goes into a far country and is absorbed in mind and spirit by strange and subtle calls of Fame, Glory, or Wealth.

Oh, we may lose much—much. But if Memory lives, we may keep a richer store than all the accumulated possessions of the richest. Hidden away in the humblest hut may live a wiser one than King Solomon, and surely a happier one.

It is by hoarded memories, accumulated during the days and months of each year, that we grow in beauty of mind and heart. They scent our dreams, and flavor life. They compensate, where all other compensations seem to have melted away.

Camels have made smoking
a national pleasure!

With years of steady growth behind them, Camels continue to grow. They are smoked today by more millions than ever before.

The increasing popularity of smoking in the United States exactly parallels the growth of Camel Cigarettes. Camel has given smokers a cigarette of genuine quality . . . a marvelous blend of choicest tobaccos . . . mild, fragrant, satisfying. This is the quality that smokers depend upon, and they can rest assured it will never be sacrificed. Taste in smoking, as the real pleasure of smoking is experienced, leads directly to Camel quality.

BOGNOR BECOMES A ROYAL TOWN

Bognor Regis England (AP)—Citizens of this little health resort on the south coast where King George convalesced after his long illness feel that one of the towns-men has committed a faux pas. Soon after the king had recovered his health the local business Majesty, with a twinkle in his eye, men, with, perhaps, visions of increased popularity for the town, petitioned for the right to tack a "royal" behind the town's original name of Bognor. The other day a Bognor Regis shopkeeper happened on the king's Majesty at Sandring-ham. The king asked him where he was from. "Bognor," replied the shopkeeper. "Bognor Regis," corrected His Majesty, with a twinkle in his eye.

First Lady of Land Lives as Carefree Wife

Washington (AP)—Lou Henry Hoover, who rode a friendly bicycle over Iowa country roads, has not changed much.

In the months that have passed since the heavy responsibility as President's wife was placed on her, her acts have pictured a new type of First Lady.

She has done unprecedented things and a resume of her "tenure in office" brings out sharply that hers will be a unique place in history.

She shops and drives alone. She goes to evening entertainments without the President.

She brings the things in which she is interested into the daily life of the White House instead of letting it and her exalted position in the nation's life rule her.

Until she became First Lady, it was an unheard of thing for the President's wife to make any trip, however short, outside the White House gates unless accompanied by a secret service man.

Now a White House car often glides out of the big gate with the mistress of the mansion at the wheel. Only women friends are in the car. No solicitous "other car" accompanies them.

When she goes on trips out of town or to affairs where big crowds make it unwise for her to be alone, however, Mrs. Hoover conforms to custom.

The sight of Mrs. Hoover, walking buoyantly along on her low-heeled shoes, is not an unusual occurrence in Washington's shopping district. Here, too, she is unaccompanied save by a girl secretary.

Mrs. Hoover has re-arranged the White House to suit herself and in a way to make it homey and comfortable. She has planted a lovely California garden in the back yard

GERMANS SEEKING
RUSS CONCESSIONS

Moscow (AP)—Germany was ahead of the United States this year in the number of bids submitted for concessions within the Soviet Union. Of the 270 tenders made from foreign sources 72 came from Germany and 69 from the United States.

The Chief Concessions Committee was especially interested in noting that there were 29 English bids in the list. Last year only seven came where she entertains little groups of friends at tea.

She still has intimate Sunday night suppers, just as she did on S street, with a few friends dropping in informally.

This Nurse
Just Couldn't
Stop Coughing

Specialists Didn't Help

It takes more than ordinary sweet, syrupy cough mixtures to stop a stubborn cough that persists in hanging on.

For slight ordinary coughs almost any decent cough syrup will do, but if you have one of those tough ones that won't yield to common remedies and often keeps you awake at night then your one best bet is Broncholine Emulsion.

Often one half bottle forces the most stubborn cough to yield and you are better almost before you know it.

There is no sugar, chloroform or dope in Broncholine Emulsion; it's a wonderful medicine for people who are getting over a heavy cold or an attack of Flu.

A New York nurse just couldn't stop coughing even after consulting specialists yet one half bottle of Broncholine Emulsion did stop it—completely.

Ask People's Drug Store or any good dealer for a bottle—often three or four doses will stop an ordinary cough.

It was so easy to do, too . . . no hauling in of logs, no fussing to start a reluctant flame . . . she simply touched a match to the Gas Fireplace and created comfort. of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 5 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

This Nurse
Just Couldn't
Stop Coughing

Specialists Didn't Help

It takes more than ordinary sweet, syrupy cough mixtures to stop a stubborn cough that persists in hanging on.

For slight ordinary coughs almost any decent cough syrup will do, but if you have one of those tough ones that won't yield to common remedies and often keeps you awake at night then your one best bet is Broncholine Emulsion.

Often one half bottle forces the most stubborn cough to yield and you are better almost before you know it.

There is no sugar, chloroform or dope in Broncholine Emulsion; it's a wonderful medicine for people who are getting over a heavy cold or an attack of Flu.

A New York nurse just couldn't stop coughing even after consulting specialists yet one half bottle of Broncholine Emulsion did stop it—completely.

Ask People's Drug Store or any good dealer for a bottle—often three or four doses will stop an ordinary cough.

It was so easy to do, too . . . no hauling in of logs, no fussing to start a reluctant flame . . . she simply touched a match to the Gas Fireplace and created comfort. Medicine Store Opens.—With the opening of Stephen's Medicine Store at 34 Baltimore street, another improvement is added to Gettysburg.
The store is not a branch of any
Carlisle store, but is controlled by C.
Ross Shuman, formerly of Harrisburg, and now a resident of Gettysburg. W. C. Stephens, of Carlisle, is here temporarily until the business gets under way.
Donald Weiser, of Gettysburg, a senior at high school, has been engaged to assist Mr. Shuman.

Large Crowd at Dance.—Presenting vivid testimony that the popular art of dancing in company with as worthy a cause as the hospital drive forms a combination that cannot be equalled in Adams county,
over three hundred persons struggled around Gladfelter Hall Friday night while dancing to the strains of the college orchestra.
The dance given by the Acorn
club for the benefit of the Annie M.
Warner hospital was a great success in every detail and the committee estimates that about $100 will be cleared for the endowment fund.

Members of the Acorn club are Misses Lottie Raffensperger, Ruth
Klepper, Gertrude Scheaffer, Marie Krout, Margaret Williams, Katharine Bender, Nellie Rummel, Vir-ginie Myers, Della Shultz, Ethel Culp, Blanche Hoffman, Ruth Meales, Amelia Scharf, Gladys Raymond, Maud Whiteleather, Mrs.
Becker and Mrs. Helfrich, of Baltimore.

Party.—A very enjoyable party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs.
J. Herman Bream, Chambersburg street, on Tuesday evening for their daughter, Treva, and her friends.
Those present were Mrs. J. Herman
Bream, Misses Ruth Heagey, Treva
Bream, Vera Beatty, Helen Heagey,
Margaret Hankey, May Shetter,
Dorothy Wright, Sara Galbraith,

Irene Williams, Clara McCleaf,
Helen Bream and Hazel Bream, Messrs. Glenn Bream, Alfred Gilbert, Alvin Heiges, Sylvester Mc-Kenrick, Elmer Slaybaugh, John Mickley, Wilnam Mickley.

Wants to Be Citizen.—Angelos
George Cambers, of the Plaza restaurant on Baltimore street, has filed a declaration of intention papers with Prothonotary G. Harry Roth in order to become a naturalized citizen of the United States.
These papers must remain on file
two years.

Cambers came to this country in 1910 from Athens greece.

Enter Real Estate Work.—Clyde Berger, of Carlisle street, who married Miss Mary Kohler, will enter the real estate business in Gettysburg in the near future.

High in Price and Hard to Get.
With Thanksgiving day only a week off the fact that turkeys are high and scarce is becoming impressive.
Anywhere from forty to seventy-five cents a pound is likely to be the price levied upon those who are determined to retain the custom of eating turkey. Geese will be worth thirty cents and ducks from twenty-seven to thirty.

Local Post Will Elect Leader.—
As a result of the rule passed at the American Legion national convention stating that "no candidate for or incumbent of a salaried elective public office shall hold any office in the American Legion or in any branch of the post thereof," the Albert Lentz post of Gettysburg will meet on the night of December 15 to select a successor to their present chairman, John W. Hartman, of Gettysburg, who was elected sheriff of Adams county at the general election.

Lauer—Hewitt.—John H. Lauer, of Gettysburg, who is employed at the Strasbaugh Lumber company, and Zora M. Hewitt, also of Gettysburg, were married by Rev. W. R.
Glen in the United Brethren parsonage, West High street on Saturday evening.

Personal.—Mrs. Norman Hoke, of Chicago, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hoke on High street.

town, is visiting his grandparents,

THE POOR RICH MAN
In a sunny place where men go to play
I met a millionaire one day.
His eye was sad and his voice was low
As he watched the workers come and go,
And I had to smile as I heard him
sob,
"I wish, to the Lord that I had a job!"

"I have everything that a mortal
needs,
A man to pull out my garden weeds,
A car to drive and food to eat—
With all I want is my life complete.
But I'm forced to idle the long days
through,
And I wish to the Lord I'd a job to do!"

"I used to dream of the joy I'd claim
When the time for quitting all labor came,
With the fortune made and the work
all done,
But a tedious life is the life of fun,
And I'd happier be, let me say to you,
Could I wake once more with a job
to do."

"There's nothing that money buys or brings
That equals the thrill of doing things.
To spend is nice, but I've lived to
earn,
I was happier far when I worked to
earn,
With pride no longer my pulses
throb,
I'm an idle man and I want a job!"

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

Dear Uncle Lucky sat within
His cosy little house,
Waiting for his breakfast
And his small housekeeper-mouse.

I suppose, dear little readers, you have been wondering what has become of Little Jack Rabbit. Perhaps you have been wishing that the next story would be all about him. Well then, you shall have your wish, but first just listen to what is going to happen in this one.

"Little Miss Mousie," suddenly exclaimed nice Uncle Lucky left-hand-foot. "I think I'll go down to Rabbitville. The rheumatism in my left hind toe is better this morning."

Indeed, I feel quite frisky," and with a nimble hop-tee-ty, the dear old gentleman rabbit crossed the shiny floor of the sitting room and out into the hall. Taking his precious old wedding stovepipe hat from the peg in the wall, he fastened in more securely his diamond horseshoe pin that sparkled from his purple cravat, and then hopped out to the garage.

"Hey, there, Old Red Rooster," he shouted, "have you washed the Luckymobile?"

"Yes, indeedy," answered the old fowl, strutting from the barn in his rubber boots that reached clear up

to his feathered trousers;
"It's as clean as a whistle,
Shines like a new pin.
All you have to do
Is just to hop in."

"Well, that's easy," chuckled the old gentleman bunny, and in he hopped, clipperty clop, and giving the horn a honk or two, away and away like a comet he flew.

Goodness gracious me! There goes "Remmy," my typewriter friend, into poetry, not only neglecting to put the pretty rhymes into verse form, but making a mistake as well. Yes, indeed, automobiles don't fly, not even in Rabbitland!
Well, we'll let it go at that.

By and by, after a while, and nearly a mile, the old gentleman bunny stopped at the Three-in-One Cent Store, where he inquired of the lady salesman, a nice little duck,
if she kept blue ribbons.

"What are you going to do with them?" she asked, with a twinkle in her eye. "These narrow ones are for babies, these big ones for ladies."
"Can you tie up bobed hair with them?" asked the dear, perplexed old gentleman rabbit.

"Bobbed hair and ribbons are strangers these days," answered the lady duck salesman, with a quackery laugh.

"Dear, dear," sighed poor Uncle Lucky. "I just read in Mother Goose of a little girl whose Johnny had gone to the fair to buy her a bunch of blue ribbons to tie up her bonny brown hair."

"Ha, ha!" chuckled the lady duck.
"Girls wear curls in those days. Ha, ha!"

"Dear, dear, dearest me!" sighed
Uncle Lucky. "Maybe I had better buy a lollypop for Miss Mousie," and he took out a carrot cent and laid it on the counter. And as he hopped out and climbed into the Lucky-mobile he wished that Miss Mosie were long curls so that he might have bought a bunch of blue ribbons to tie up her bonny brown hair. In the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

"Cook-a-doodle-do,
The old mare's lost her shoe.
Henny Jenny's done her best
To fill with eggs her comfy nest."

I've waked the sun this early morn
By loudly blowing my little tin horn,"

sang Cocky Doodles, the little red rooster, as Little Jack Rabbit peeked through a crack in the fence at the Big Farmyard. Just a few hops away, in his comfortable wooden bungalow, slept Old Sic-em, the farmer's watch dog. Lazily opening his eyes, he turned them toward the bunny boy rabbit.

"Well, well, well," softly barked
the old canine, stretching himself as he crawled out into the sunshine.

"How's my bunny friend today?"
"Just as happy as yesterday, but I'm not sure about tomorrow," answered the truthful little rabbit.
"Do what Mother says and every day in the week you'll be happy," replied the old dog, with a wag of his tail.

"I do try, but sometimes I forget,"
admitted the little rabbit.
"Tie a pink string around a finger. That will help you to remember," chuckled the old dog. "The chain on my collar never lets me forget that I can't go visiting."

"Don't you get fidgety?" asked the kind hearted little bunny, holding out a yellow lollypop.

"Oh, yes, often," answered the old dog. "Sometimes the Kind Farmer takes me to the village for a run. When I get back I'm tired and don't mind being tied up. Oh, I guess I'm used to it."

"Sic'em, want to go to the village?" all of a sudden inquired a voice, and there in the kitchen doorway stood the Kind Farmer himself.

With a nimble hop-tee-dy the little rabbit hid behind the haystack hitched up to the buggy. Picking up the reins, the Kind Farmer clicked his tongue against his teeth, and off he drove down the road.

"We'll be home in time for tea.
Better not wait till then for me,"

barked Old Sic'em as the little rabbit hopped out from his hiding place, which suited the bunny boy, for he had other things to do. Nor could he stay long in one spot. No, indeedy, Danny Fox might happen by or Old Man Weasel stroll along, so away hopped the little rabbit toward the wildwood, where the trees shivered in the wind and the dry leaves rustled on the ground.

"Where are you going?" all of a sudden asked Grandmother Crow.
Her sharp eyes had spied him before he had even caught a glimpse of her. Dear me, I wonder why disagreeable folks are so apt to see us first. Perhaps it's because we are not thinking of them.

"Where are you going?" again inquired this meddlesome old person in black feather.

"No where in particular," answered the truthful little rabbit, wishing to goodness gracious he did have an errand to hasten him along.

"What's your ma doing?" inquired the old black lady bird.

"Making pies for Thanksgiving," replied the little rabbit. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

With years of steady growth be-

The increasing popularity of smoking in the United States exactly parallels the growth of Camel Cigarettes. Camel has given smokers a cigarette of genuine quality . . . a marvelous blend of choicest tobaccos . . . mild, fra-

How Weak Nervous Women Grow Stronger

Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Steadier Nerves

If you only knew—you rundown, anemic women—who are dragging yourself around on your "nerves"—what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. Sarah A. Vose, of 24 S. Goodwin St., Kingston, Pa., says: "Five years I had been going down in health—couldn't sleep or eat, and could barely walk. Now at 74 years of age I do all my housework and laundry, and feel Tanlac has put many years ahead of me."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 10 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.

STEALS $3,529,000
Flint, Michigan—The greatest embezzlement in the history of the country shows $3,529,000 loss by the Union Industrial bank, whose employees played the stock market. The net loss, after realization and recovery, is expected to aggregate $2,000,000. A notable feature of the loss has been the deposit of more than $2,500,000 of his private fortune by Charles S. Mott, president, to guarantee the bank against any loss.

Don't Buy--"Just a Heater"
Buy Warmth and Beauty

Plenty of healthful warmth, cozy comfort in every room; beauty and style equaling that of the finest modern furniture—that's what you get when you choose

Copper-Clad's Twin Flue Super-Heater

The Twin Flue is a patented feature found in no other circulating heater. An outstanding achievement in heater construction, it gives truly amazing heating-power together with gratifying economy of fuel.

Come in and let us explain the twin flue principle. It is easy to understand and very interesting. Once you see how it works you'll wonder how anyone could ever be satisfied with anything but a Twin Flue Super-Heater.

Then we want you to see how beautiful this heater is. The picture here give you some idea of the symmetry and gracefulness of the console cabinet, but they cannot show you the wonderful walnut finish which is an exact reproduction, in graining and color, of natural walnut wood.

STEALS $3,529,000

Flint, Michigan.—The greatest embezzlement in the history of the country shows $3,529,000 loss by the Union Industrial bank, whose employees played the stock market, the net loss, after realization and recovery, is expected to aggregate

$2,000,000. A notable feature of the loss has been the deposit of more than $2,500,000 of his private fortune by Charles S. Mott, president, to guarantee the bank against any loss.

Copper-Clad's
Twin Flue Super-Heater

The Twin Flue is a patented feature found in no other circulating heater. An outstanding achievement in heater construction, it gives truly amazing heating-power together with gratifying economy of fuel.

Come in and let us explain the twin flue principle. It is easy to understand and very interesting. Once you see how it works you'll wonder how anyone could ever be satisfied with anything but a Twin Flue Super-Heater.

Then we want you to see how beautiful this heater is. The picture here give you some idea of the symmetry and gracefulness of the console cabinet, but they cannot show you the wonderful walnut finish which is an exact reproduction, in graining and color, of natural walnut wood.

FLOWER BED IS FOUND IN CAVE

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—A subterranean garden of flower-like crystals is the newest find in Mammoth cave.

The formation was discovered by Leo McGavic and Cecil Cutliff, guides, in a chamber, with an area of 500 square feet. It is not more than a mile and a half from the famous Sand cave in which Floyd Collins was imprisoned for almost two and a half months before his body was brought from its rocky tomb to the surface.

Pushing their way through a tunnel which almost stopped their advance, McGavic and Cutliff found themselves in the flower garden, their lights reflected by millions of gleaming crystal flowers which rose from the chamber floor much after the manner of cabbages. The clusters varied in diameter from three to 14 inches, but all were the same height.

The crystals are believed to be nature's transformation of some strange underwater vegetable growth left high and dry ages ago. The formation, according to George D. Morrison, president of the Mammoth Cave Development company, is neither stalactitic, helictic or stalagmatic and is unlike anything discovered before. He says that it is some kind of gypsum formation.
